...then you may be able to receive a monthly box of food from the Commodity Supplemental Food Program!

What is in the monthly box?

Box contents will vary each month but will contain shelf-stable items to make complete meals including milk products, juices, proteins, cereals, peanut butter or dry beans, grains, canned vegetables, and canned fruits. Each box also comes with a block of cheese.

What is required to receive a box?

There is absolutely no cost to be enrolled in this program. Individuals must fill out an application and be accepted to the Commodity Supplemental Food Program. Individuals may only receive a monthly CSFP box from one location. There may be a waitlist for the program at the time of your application and if you miss 2 monthly pick-ups in a row without contacting The Foodbank, you may be removed from the program.

What if I cannot pick up my own box every month?

Individuals may appoint up to two people to pick-up their box in case they cannot make it to the pick-up date/location. Home care organizations, case managers, friends, family members, neighbors, etc. may serve as an assigned proxy. You may list them on your application or send a signed and dated note giving them permission to pick up.
